Residential Building

The villa is situated in a residential area from the 70's and 80's, where surrounding buildings look dull and unstructured. The white minimalist building is a bright element among its neighbors. From the street the building appears locked up and exhibits its individual character. An added extension, which contains a sheltered terrace, is joined with the main building by a glass walkway. The simple materials, such as white plaster, expose concrete and oak wood floors, together with soft light, lend a special touch to the residence.
